STRONG Son of G, immortal Love, In Mem., Pro. 1
O mother, praying G will save Thy sailor,— " vi 13 drains The chalice of the grapes of G; " x 16
What then were G to such as I? " xxxiv 9
G shut the doorways of his head. " xliv 4
Ye watch, like G, the rolling hours " li 14
When G hath made the pile complete; " liv 8
The likest G within the soul? " lv 4
Are G and Nature then at strife, " 5
That slope thro' darkness up to G, " 16
Who trusted G was love indeed " lvi 13
In endless age? It rests with G. " lxxiii 12
But stay'd in peace with G and man. " lxxx 8
G's finger touch'd him, and he slept. " lxxxv 20 saw The G within him light his face, " lxxxvii 36
With g's in unconjectured bliss, " xciii 10
Israel made their g's of gold, " xcvi 23
Where G and Nature met in light; " cxi 20
mix'd with G and Nature thou, " cxxx 11
That friend of mine who lives in G, " Con. 140
That G, which ever lives and loves, " 141
One G, one law, one element, " 142
O father! O G! was it well?— Maud I i 6
ah G, as he used to rave. " 60 G grant I may find it at last! " ii 1 how G will bring them about " iv 44
Ah G, for a man with heart, head, hand, " x 60
May G make me more wretched Than ever " xix 94 Arise, my G, and strike, " II i 45 as long, O G, as she Have a grain of love for me, " ii 52 Britain's one sole G be the millionaire: " III vi 22
G's just wrath shall be wreak'd on a giant liar; " 45
I embrace the purpose of G, " 59
G's love set Thee at his side again! Ded. of Idylls 55
'the fire of G Descends upon thee in the battle-field: Com. of Arthur 129
Arthur said, 'Man's word is G in man: " 133
G hath told the King a secret word. " 489
In whom high G hath breathed a secret thing. " 501 G wot, he had not beef and brewis enow, Gareth and L. 457 as for love, G wot, I love not yet, But love I shall, G willing.' " 561

God (continued) and cried, 'G bless the King, and all his fellowship!' Gareth and L. 698 my lance Hold, by G's grace, he shall into the mire— " 723 G wot, so thou wert nobly born, " 1064
'G wot, I never look'd upon the face, " 1333 Canst thou not trust the limbs thy G hath given, " 1388
'Here, by G's grace, is the one voice for me.' Marr. of Geraint 344
'Here by G's rood is the one maid for me.' " 368
Who knows? another gift of the high G, " 821
I know, G knows, too much of palaces! Geraint and E. 236
G's curse, it makes me mad to see you " 616
flush'd with fight, or hot, G's curse, with anger— " 661 Yea, G, I pray you of your gentleness, " 710 Man's word is G in man.' Balin and Balan 8 and yet—G guide them—young.' Merlin and V. 29
by G's rood, I trusted you too much.' " 376 for love of G and men And noble deeds, " 412
Her G, her Merlin, the one passionate love " 955
O G, that I had loved a smaller man! " 872 G's mercy, what a stroke was there! Lancelot and E. 24 but G Broke the strong lance, " 25 rule the land Hereafter, which G hinder.' " 66 honours his own word, As if it were his G's?' " 144 G wot, his shield is blank enough. " 197 in this heathen war the fire of G Fills him: " 315 Rapt on his face as if it were a G's. " 356
No diamonds! for G's love, a little air! " 505
'Yea, by G's death,' said he, 'ye love him well, " 679
Not all unhappy, having loved G's best And greatest, " 1093
I would to G, Seeing the homeless trouble " 1364 shaped, it seems, By G for thee alone, " 1367 may G, I pray him, send a sudden Angel " 1423
'G make thee good as thou are beautiful,' Holy Grail 136 named us each by name, Calling 'G speed!' " 352 seem'd Shoutings of all the sons of G: " 509
If G would send the vision, well: " 658
When G made music thro' them, " 878
Nor the high G a vision, nor that One Who rose again: " 918
I might have answer'd them Even before high G. Pelleas and E. 463
'Fear G: honour the King— Last Tournament 302 Conceits himself as G that he can make " 355 woman-worshipper? Yea, G's curse, and I! " 447
My G, the measure of my hate for Mark " 537
Pale-blooded, she will yield herself to G.' " 608
'I will flee hence and give myself to G'— " 624
May G be with thee, sweet, (repeat) " 627, 629
My G, the power Was once in vows " 648
And every follower eyed him as a G; " 678
those whom G had made full-limb'd and tall, Guinevere 42
Would G that thou could'st hide me " 118
To honour his own word as if his G's, " 473
I guard as G's high gift from scathe and wrong, " 494
I forgive thee, as Eternal G Forgives: " 544
We two may meet before high G, " 564 hereafter in the heavens Before high G. " 638 my G, What might I not have made of thy fair world, " 654
As if some lesser g had made the world, Pass. of Arthur 14
Till the High G behold it from beyond, " 16
My G, thou hast forgotten me in my death: Nay— G my Christ—I pass but shall not die.' " 27
G fulfils himself in many ways, " 409 knowing G, they lift not hands of prayer " 420 Bound by gold chains about the feet of G. " 423
G unknits the riddle of the one, Lover's Tale i 181
so much wealth as G had charged her with— " 213
I said to her, 'A day for G's to stoop,' " 304 uphold Thy coronal of glory like a G, " 488 tell him of the bliss he had with G— " 674 nymph and g ran ever round in gold— " iv 197
Some cousin of his and hers—O G, so like!' " 327
G bless you, my own little Nell.' First Quarrel 22
I told them my tale, G's own truth— Rizpah 34
G 'ill pardon the hell-black raven " 39
I have been with G in the dark— " 79 an' the loov o' G fur men, North. Cobbler 55

God (continued) 'Fore G I am no coward; The Revenge 4
G of battles, was ever a battle like this " 62 Fall into the hands of G, " 90 and lodged with Plato's G, Sisters (E. and E.) 131
G help the wrinkled children that are Christ's " 183
My G, I would not live Save that I think " 228
G help them, our children and wives! Def. of Lucknow 8
But G is with me in this wilderness, Sir J. Oldcastle 8
G's free air, and hope of better things. " 10
So much G's cause was fluent in it— " 17
Had he G's word in Welsh He might be kindlier: " 22 come, G willing, to outlearn the filthy friar. " 118 to thee, green boscage, work of G, " 129
I spread mine arms, G's work, I said, " 137
'Bury them as G's truer images Are daily buried.' " 140
Do penance in his heart, G hears him.' " 143
What profits an ill Priest Between me and my G? " 145
'No bread, no bread. G's body!' " 159
Then I, G help me, I So mock'd, " 162
G pardon all—Me, them, and all the world— " 168
the fourth Was like the Son of G! " 176
G willing, I will burn for Him. " 193
In praise to G who led me thro' the waste. Columbus 17 that was clean Against G's word: " 55
There was a glimmering of G's hand. " 142
And G Hath more than glimmer'd on me. " 143
Ah G, the harmless people whom we found " 181
Who took us for the very G's from Heaven, " 183 in that flight of ages which are G's " 202 thunder of G peal'd over us all the day, V. of Maeldune 113 Whereon the Spirit of G moves as he will— De Prof., Two G. 28 and quench The red G's anger, " 158 flash The faces of the G's— " 173 those who mix all odour to the G's " 184

ah G, what a heart was mine to forsake her The Wreck 95
'would G, we had never met!' " 102
but ah G, that night, that night Despair 8 Flashing with fires as of G, " 16 your faith and a G of eternal rage, " 39 taking the place of the pitying G that should be! " 42
'Ah G' tho' I felt as I spoke I was taking the name in vain—'Ah G' and we turn'd to each other, " 52
Ah G, should we find Him, perhaps, " 56
And if I believed in a G, " 70
but were there a G as you say, " 101
Of a G behind all—after all—the great G for aught that I know; But the G of Love and of Hell together— " 104
If there be such a G, may the great G " 106
Or power as of the G's gone blind Ancient Sage 80 none but G's could build this house " 83
To lie, to lie—in G's own house— The Flight 52 side by side in G's free light and air, " 81

'Would to G that we were there'? " 192
a G must mingle with the game: " 271
Warrior of G, man's friend, and tyrant's foe, Epit. on Gordon 1
G the traitor's hope confound! (repeat) Hands all Round 10, 22, 34
Pray G our greatness may not fail " 31 Led upward by the G of ghosts and dreams, Demeter and P. 5
when before have G's or men beheld The Life " 29 Spring from his fallen G, " 80
we spin the lives of men, And not of G's, " 86

God (continued) he, the G of dreams, who heard my cry, Demeter and P. 91
I, Earth-Goddess, cursed the G's of Heaven. " 102
But younger kindlier G's to bear us down, As we bore down the G's before us? G's, To quench, not hurl the thunderbolt, " 131
G's indeed, To send the noon into the night " 134 made themselves as G's against the fear Of Death " 141
O G, I could blaspheme, Happy 15
That G would ever slant His bolt from falling " 81 trust myself forgiven by the G to whom I kneel " 86
Now G has made you leper in His loving care " 91
In the name Of the everlasting G, I will live and die " 108 sees a g black cloud Drag inward from the deeps, „ 36

bowers Drew the g night into themselves, „ 49
her g heart thro' all the faultful Past „ 248
Then reign the world's g bridals, „ 294
A g broad-shoulder'd genial Englishman, „ Con. 85
Why should not these g Sirs Give up their parks „ 102

Great (continued) Bury the G Duke With an empire's lamentation, Let us bury the G Duke
To the noise Ode on Well. 1
The last g Englishman is low. „ 18
G in council and g in war, „ 30
g World-victor's victor will be seen no more. „ 42
In that dread sound to the g name, „ 71
Was g by land as thou by sea. (repeat) „ 84, 90
And ever g and greater grew, „ 108
So g a soldier taught us there, „ 131
Attest their g commander's claim With honour, „ 148 reverence and regret To those g men who fought, „ 158
All g self-seekers trampling on the right; „ 187
Let his g example stand Colossal, „ 220 watching here At this, our g solemnity. „ 244
He is gone who seem'd so g.— „ 271
Sounds of the g sea Wander'd about. Minnie and Winnie 7
Like those who cried Diana g: Lit. Squabbles 16
Heart, are you g enough For a love that never tires? O heart, are you g enough for love? Window, Marr. Morn. 17
Calm and still light on yon g plain In Mem. xi 9
In those g offices that suit The full-grown energies „ xl 19
There must be wisdom with g Death: „ li 11
Upon the g world's altar-stairs „ lv 15
Leaving g legacies of thought, „ lxxxiv 35
The g Intelligences fair That range above „ lxxxv 21
She darkly feels him g and wise, „ xcvii 34
Let her g Danube rolling fair Enwind her isles, „ xcviii 9 one would chant the history Of that g race, „ ciii 35 where we saw A g ship lift her shining sides. „ 40 Brings in g logs and let them lie, „ cvii 17
I would the g world grew like thee, „ cxiv 25
By thee the world's g work is heard Beginning, „ cxxi 10
And the g Æon sinks in blood, „ cxxvii 16
As gentle; liberal-minded, g, Consistent; „ Con. 38
She would not do herself this g wrong, Maud I x 57
Like some of the simple g ones gone For ever „ 61 yellow vapours choke The g city sounding wide; „ II iv 64 praying To his own g self, as I guess; „ v 33
And so there grew g tracts of wilderness, Com. of Arthur 10
Of those g Lords and Barons of his realm „ 65 Made lightnings and g thunders over him, „ 108 whatsoever Merlin did In one g annal-book, „ 158
after, the g lords Banded, and so brake out in open war.' „ 236
And simple words of g authority, „ 261
So this g brand the king Took, „ 308
watch'd the g sea fall, Wave after wave, „ 378
And the fringe Of that g breaker, „ 387
From the g deep to the g deep he goes.' „ 411
so g bards of him will sing Hereafter; „ 414
There at the banquet those g Lords from Rome, „ 504
so those g lords Drew back in wrath, „ 513 in twelve g battles overcame The heathen hordes, „ 518 eagle-circles up To the g Sun of Glory, Gareth and L. 22 at times the g gate shone Only, „ 194 like the cross her g and goodly arms Stretch'd „ 218 and faith in their g King, with pure Affection, „ 330
But Mark hath tarnish'd the g name of king, „ 426
Lyonors, A lady of high lineage, of g lands, „ 609
Now two g entries open'd from the hall, „ 665 take counsel; for this lad is g And lusty, „ 730 Till Gareth panted hard, and his g heart, „ 1126
hew'd g pieces of his armour off him, „ 1142
There rides no knight, not Lancelot, his g self, „ 1182
one Of that g Order of the Table Round, Marr. of Geraint 3 Thro' that g tenderness for Guinevere, „ 30 watch his mightful hand striking g blows „ 95
by g mischance He heard but fragments „ 112
And here had fall'n a g part of a tower, „ 317
Our hoard is little, but our hearts are g. (repeat) „ 352, 374
For the g wave that echoes round the world; „ 420
Avenging this g insult done the Queen.' „ 425 his face Glow'd like the heart of a g fire at Yule, „ 559 and still The dew of their g labour, „ 568
'Remember that great insult done the Queen,' „ 571

Great (continued) fell at last In the g battle fighting for the King. Marr. of Geraint 596
And should some g court-lady say, „ 723
As this g Prince invaded us, and we, „ 747 our g Queen, In words whose echo lasts, „ 781
Till the g plover's human whistle amazed Her heart, Geraint and E. 49
Saw once a g piece of a promontory, „ 162
I will tell him How g a man thou art: „ 228
While the g charger stood, grieved like a man. „ 535
This work of his is g and wonderful. „ 898
A thousand-fold more g and wonderful „ 914
His work was neither g nor wonderful, „ 921
There the g Queen once more embraced her friend, „ 947
They call'd him the g Prince and man of men. „ 961 him who first Brought the g faith to Britain Balin and Balan 103 down that range of roses the g Queen Came „ 244
And by the g Queen's name, arise and hence.' „ 482
By the g tower—Caerleon upon Usk— „ 506
I thought the g tower would crash down on both— „ 515
But the g Queen herself, fought in her name, Merlin and V. 13
G Nature thro' the flesh herself hath made „ 50
When Guinevere was crossing the g hall „ 65
Then fell on Merlin a g melancholy; „ 189 work the charm Upon the g Enchanter of the Time, „ 216
'G Master, do ye love me?' he was mute. „ 237
Caught in a g old tyrant spider's web, „ 259
And therefore be as g as ye are named, „ 336
The g proof of your love: „ 354
I heard the g Sir Lancelot sing it once, „ 385
Then the g Master merrily answer'd her: „ 545
Who lived alone in a g wild on grass; „ 621
I thought that he was gentle, being g: „ 871
he rode to tilt For the g diamond in the diamond jousts, Lancelot and E. 31
'Then will ye miss,' he answer'd, 'the g deeds Of Lancelot, „ 81 your g name This conquers: „ 150
With laughter dying down as the g knight „ 179
The g and guilty love he bare the Queen, „ 245
the g knight, the darling of the court, „ 261
By the g river in a boatman's hut. „ 278
'O there, g lord, doubtless,' Lavaine said, „ 281
And seeing me, with a g voice he cried, „ 309
'Save your g self, fair lord;' „ 320
And after muttering 'The g Lancelot,' „ 421
'Me you call g: mine is the firmer seat, „ 446
Of greatness to know well I am not g: „ 451
Lancelot gave A marvellous g shriek and ghastly groan, „ 516
Came round their g Pendragon, saying to him, „ 528
So g a knight as we have seen to-day— „ 533
knowing he was Lancelot; his g name Conquer'd; „ 579
A sleeve of scarlet, broider'd with g pearls, „ 604 flung herself Down on the g King's couch, „ 610
I deem you know full well Where your g knight is hidden, „ 690
Yet the g knight in his mid-sickness made „ 878
Up the g river in the boatman's boat. „ 1038
And there the g Sir Lancelot muse at me; „ 1055
My knight, the g Sir Lancelot of the Lake.' „ 1373
Or sin seem less, the sinning seeming g? „ 1418
In our g hall there stood a vacant chair, Holy Grail 167
While the g banquet lay along the hall, „ 180

Where twelve g windows blazon Arthur's wars, „ 248
Streams thro' the twelve g battles of our King. „ 250
Knights that in twelve g battles splash'd and dyed „ 311
All the g table of our Arthur closed „ 329
A g black swamp and of an evil smell, „ 499
A thousand piers ran into the g Sea. „ 503 first At once I saw him far on the g Sea, „ 510
With one g dwelling in the middle of it; „ 574 bound and plunged him into a cell Of g piled stones; „ 676
a g stone slipt and fell, Such as no wind could move: „ 680

Gareth leaning both h's heavily Down „ 439
a nostril large and fine, and h's Large, fair and fine!— „ 465 Lying or sitting round him, idle h's, Charm'd; „ 512 and bow Lowly, to kiss his h, „ 549
So with a kindly h on Gareth's arm „ 578
And told him of a cavern hard at h, „ 1189
h hath fashion'd on the rock The war of Time „ 1197

Hand (part of body) (continued) when he found the grass within his h's He laugh'd; Gareth and L. 1225
Lancelot!—thine the h That threw me? „ 1241
O Lancelot, Lancelot'—and she clapt her h's— „ 1290 waving to him White h's, and courtesy; „ 1377 Lady Lyonors wrung her h's and wept, „ 1395 with her own white h's Array'd and deck'd her, Marr. of Geraint 16 and all flyers from the h Of Justice, „ 36 watch his mightful h striking great blows „ 95 instinctive h Caught at the hilt, „ 209
White from the mason's h, (repeat) „ 244, 408
Came forward with the helmet yet in h „ 285
Or it may be the labour of his h's, „ 341
Frown and we smile, the lords of our own h's; „ 354
And fondling all her h in his he said, „ 509
On either shining shoulder laid a h, „ 518 and h in h they moved Down to the meadow „ 536
There came a clapping as of phantom h's. „ 566
To seek a second favour at his h's. „ 626 and in her h A suit of bright apparel, „ 677
Came one with this and laid it in my h, „ 699
Help'd by the mother's careful h and eye, „ 738
Her by both h's he caught, and sweetly said, „ 778
our fair Queen, No h but hers, should make „ 788
For by the h's of Dubric, the high saint, „ 838 Far liefer by his dear h had I die, Geraint and E. 68 creatures gently born But into bad h's fall'n. „ 192
in his h Bare victual for the mowers: „ 201
In the mid-warmth of welcome and graspt h, „ 280
Geraint Waving an angry h as who should say „ 444
But lift a shining h against the sun, „ 473
Nor let her true h falter, nor blue eye Moisten, „ 512 after all was done that h could do, She rested, „ 517 chafing his pale h's, and calling to him. „ 582 chafing his faint h's, and calling to him; „ 585
Take my salute,' unknightly with flat h, „ 717 reach'd a h, and on his foot She set her own and climb'd; „ 759 Put h to h beneath her husband's heart, „ 767 wrought too long with delegated h's, „ 893 set up a stronger race With hearts and h's, „ 941 my h Was gauntleted, half slew him; Balin and Balan 56
Lancelot with his h among the flowers „ 259
Saint who stands with lily in h In yonder shrine. „ 261
'And passing gentle' caught his h away „ 371
Then h at ear, and hearkening from what side „ 415
white h whose ring'd caress Had wander'd „ 512
The hearts of all this Order in mine h— Merlin and V. 56 damsel bidden rise arose And stood with folded h's „ 69 Courteous—amends for gauntness—takes her h— „ 104 how h lingers in h! Let go at last!— „ 106 her left h Droop from his mighty shoulder, „ 242
And make a pretty cup of both my h's „ 275
And Merlin lock'd his h in hers (repeat) „ 290, 470 charm Of woven paces and of waving h's, (repeat) „ 330, 968
Merlin loosed his h from hers and said, „ 356
It lives dispersedly in many h's, „ 457
The wrist is parted from the h that waved, „ 551 ringing with their serpent h's, „ 578 her h half-clench'd Went faltering sideways „ 849 clapt her h's Together with a wailing shriek, „ 866
some one put this diamond in her h, Lancelot and E. 212
Half-envious of the flattering h, „ 349
So kiss'd her, and Sir Lancelot his own h, „ 389
she smote her h: wellnigh she swoon'd: „ 625 it will be sweet to have it From your own h; „ 694 slightly kiss'd the h to which he gave, „ 702 with mine own h give his diamond to him, „ 760
His battle-writhen arms and mighty h's „ 812
And laid the diamond in his open h. „ 827
yet he glanced not up, nor waved his h, „ 986
Then gave a languid h to each, and lay, „ 1032 lay the letter in my h A little ere I die, and close the h Upon it; „ 1113
Her father laid the letter in her h, And closed the h upon it, and she died. „ 1134

Hand (part of body) (continued) Set in her h a lily, o'er her hung The silken case Lancelot and E. 1148
in one cold passive h Received at once and laid aside " 1201

In colour like the fingers of a h Before a burning taper, " 693 caught his h, Held it, and there, half-hidden " 753
The sword was dash'd from out my h, and fell. " 826
—yea, his very h and foot— " 915
slender was her h and small her shape; Pelleas and E. 74 Taking his h, 'O the strong h,' she said, " 126 straitly nipt the h, and flung it from her; " 133 by that strong h of his The sword and golden circlet " 169
And mindful of her small and cruel h, " 201 strong h, which had overthrown Her minion-knights, " 234 Shaking his h's, as from a lazar's rag, " 317 delegate to thrall These fighting h's of mine— " 337 tame thy jailing princess to thine h. " 344 as a h that pushes thro' the leaf To find a nest " 436 clench'd His h's, and madden'd with himself " 460 Sent h's upon him, as to tear him, " 521
A cripple, one that held a h for alms— " 542 toward him from the hall, with harp in h, Last Tournament 5 Slid from my h's, when I was leaning out " 43 Bridge-broken, one eye out, and one h off, " 59 his strong h's gript And dinted the gilt dragons " 181
See, the h Wherewith thou takest this, " 192
My h—belike the lance hath dript upon it— " 200
Dagonet with one foot poised in his h, " 285 Dagonet clapt his h's and shrill'd, " 353
'Isolt Of the white h's' they call'd her: " 398 served him well with those white h's " 400 Graspt it so hard, that all her h was red. Then cried the Breton, 'Look, her h is red! " 411 melts within her h—her h is hot With ill desires, " 414
Not lift a h—not, tho' he found me thus! " 528
And she, my namesake of the h's, " 594

H's in h's, and eye to eye Low on the border " 100 and bow'd down upon her h's Silent, " 158 full passionately, Her head upon her h's, " 181 meat he long'd for served By h's unseen; " 266
He falter'd, and his h fell from the harp, " 303
Whereat the novice crying, with clasp'd h's, " 311
He spared to lift his h against the King " 437
I made them lay their h's in mine and swear " 467 and laid her h's about his feet. " 528
I cannot take thy h; that too is flesh, " 553 Perceived the waving of his h's that blest. " 584 Here her h Grasp'd, made her vail her eyes: " 662 to and fro Swaying the helpless h's, Pass. of Arthur 131 either h, Or voice, or else a motion of the mere. " 244
I will arise and slay thee with my h's.' " 300
Then with both h's I flung him, " 325 O'er both his shoulders drew the languid h's, " 342 those three Queens Put forth their h's, " 374 chafed his h's, and call'd him by his name, " 377 knowing God, they lift not h's of prayer " 420 Straining his eyes beneath an arch of h, " 464

my h is there before you are come, Window, On the Hill 14 Gone, and a cloud in my h, „ Gone 6
you bite far into the h of the house, „ Winter 11
You have bitten into the h of the earth, „ 18
Break—you may break my h. Faint h never won— The Answer 8
O merry my h, you have gotten the wings of love, Ay 15 lighten into my eyes and my h, Into my h and my blood! Marr. Morn. 15
H, are you great enough (repeat) „ 17, 19
And with my h I muse and say: In Mem. iv 4
O h, how fares it with thee now, „ 5
But, for the unquiet h and brain, „ v 5
but some h did break. „ vi 8
Doors, where my h was used to beat So quickly „ vii 3
O my forsaken h, with thee And this poor flower „ viii 18
And in my h, if calm at all, „ xi 15
A void where h on h reposed; „ xiii 6
I, falling on his faithful h, „ xviii 14
The darken'd h that beat no more; „ xix 2
And melt the waxen h's of men.' „ xxi 8
And glad at h from May to May: „ xxii 8
Nor could I weary, h or limb, „ xxv 9
The h that never plighted troth „ xxvii 10
To lull with song an aching h, „ xxxvii 15
I vex my h with fancies dim: „ xlii 1 the h is sick, And all the wheels of Being slow. „ l 3 broke the peace Of h's that beat from day to day, „ lviii 6
Like some poor girl whose h is set On one „ lx 3
On some unworthy h with joy, „ lxii 7
Can hang no weight upon my h „ lxiii 3
You thought my h too far diseased; „ lxvi 1
Let this not vex thee, noble h! „ lxxix 2
The wrath that garners in my h; „ lxxxii 14
O h, with kindliest motion warm, „ lxxxv 34
That marry with the virgin h. „ 108
My h, tho' widow'd, may not rest Quite in the love „ 113 in the midmost h of grief Thy passion clasps „ lxxxviii 7
h and ear were fed To hear him, „ lxxxix 22
How pure at h and sound in head, „ xciv 1
But when the h is full of din, „ 13
A hunger seized my h; I read Of that glad year „ xcv 21
Their h's of old have beat in tune, „ xcvii 10
He seems to slight her simple h. „ 20
The pulses of a Titan's h; „ ciii 32
The larger h, the kindlier hand; „ cvi 30

Heart (continued) I will not eat my h alone, In Mem. cviii 3
By blood a king, at h a clown; „ cxi 4 Doors, where my h was used to beat So quickly, „ cxix 1 the h Stood up and answer'd 'I have felt.' „ cxxiv 15
And h's are warm'd and faces bloom, „ Con. 82 closed their gates with a shock on my h Maud I i 15
Than the h of the citizen hissing in war „ 24
May make my h as a millstone, „ 31 passionate h of the poet is whirl'd into folly „ iv 39
Ready in h and ready in hand, „ v 9
Kept itself warm in the h of my dreams, „ vi 18
On a h half-turn'd to stone. „ 78
O h of stone, are you flesh, „ 79
suddenly, sweetly, my h beat stronger „ viii 8 Sick, sick to the h of life, am I. „ x 36
Ah God, for a man with h, head, hand, „ 60
Set in the h of the carven gloom, „ xiv 11 drown His h in the gross mud-honey of town, „ xvi 5 Catch not my breath, O clamorous h, „ 31 shook my h to think she comes once more; „ xviii 10
Dear h, I feel with thee the drowsy spell. „ 72
My own h's h, my ownest own, farewell; „ 74
Beat with my h more blest than h can tell, „ 82
And that dead man at her h and mine: „ xix 9
From him who had ceased to share her h, „ 30
A desire that awoke in the h of the child, „ 48
To the faults of his h and mind, „ 68
There is but one With whom she has h to be gay. „ xxii 20
My h would hear her and beat, „ 69
It will ring in my h and my ears, „ II i 35 little h's that know not how to forgive: „ 44
Shall I nurse in my dark h, „ ii 55
Courage, poor h of stone! „ II iii 1
Courage, poor stupid h of stone.— „ 5
H's with no love for me: „ iv 94
And my h is a handful of dust, „ v 3 surely, some kind h will come To bury me, „ 102
it is time, O passionate h,' said I „ III vi 30
'It is time, O passionate h and morbid eye, „ 32
the h of a people beat with one desire; „ 49 flames The blood-red blossom of war with a h of fire. „ 53
We have proved we have h's in a cause, „ 55 inheritance Of such a life, a h, Ded. of Idylls 33
the spike that split the mother's h Com. of Arthur 38
A doubt that ever smoulder'd in the h's „ 64
And in the h of Arthur joy was lord. „ 124
when he heard, Leodogran in h Debating— „ 140 bold in h and act and word was he, „ 176
there be those who hate him in their h's, „ 179 Bewildering h and eye— „ 300 comforted my h, And dried my tears, „ 349
But brake his very h in pining for it, Gareth and L. 57 and tourney-falls, Frights to my h; „ 90 Albeit in mine own h I knew him King, „ 123 felt his young h hammering in his ears, „ 322
In token of true h and fealty. „ 399
h of her good horse Was nigh to burst with violence „ 762 Gareth panted hard, and his great h, „ 1126 lets His h be stirr'd with any foolish heat „ 1178 Sent all his h and breath thro' all the horn. „ 1369 with true h Adored her, as the stateliest Marr. of Geraint 19
Low to her own h piteously she said: „ 85
Our hoard is little, but our h's are great. (repeat) „ 352, 374 grateful is the noise of noble deeds To noble h's „ 438
I seem to suffer nothing h or limb, „ 472
'Well said, true h,' replied Geraint, „ 474
Yniol's h Danced in his bosom, „ 504
Tell her, and prove her h toward the Prince.' „ 513 their converse in the hall, Proving her h: „ 521 Glow'd like the h of a great fire at Yule, „ 559 softly to her own sweet h she said: „ 618 her h All overshadow'd by the foolish dream, „ 674 felt that tempest brooding round his h, Geraint and E. 11
there he broke the sentence in his h Abruptly, „ 41 great plover's human whistle amazed Her h, „ 50

Heart (continued) Enid ponder'd in her h, and said: (repeat) Geraint and E. 64, 130 disedge The sharpness of that pain about her h: „ 190
Here in the h of waste and wilderness. „ 313 fell asleep, and Enid had no h To wake him, „ 369 sadden'd all her h again. „ 445 has your palfrey h enough To bear his armour? „ 489 to his own h, 'She weeps for me:' (repeat) „ 587, 590
As all but empty h and weariness „ 652
She felt so blunt and stupid at the h: „ 747 hand to hand beneath her husband's h, „ 767 mist Like that which kept the h of Eden green „ 770
(With one main purpose ever at my h) „ 831
His very face with change of h is changed. „ 899 vigorously yet mildly, that all h's Applauded, „ 957 spirit of his youth return'd On Arthur's h; Balin and Balan 22 maidens often laugh When sick at h, „ 498

Brave h's and clean! and yet— Merlin and V. 29
Mark was half in h to hurl his cup „ 30
The h's of all this Order in mine hand— „ 56
Who feels no h to ask another boon. „ 382
Lo now, what h's have men! „ 442 brought Her own claw back, and wounded her own h. „ 500 Without the full h back may merit well „ 534 that full h of yours Whereof ye prattle, „ 548
The rustiest iron of old fighters' h's; „ 574
Merlin to his own h, loathing, said: „ 790 colours of the h that are not theirs. „ 822
'Stabb'd through the h's affections to the h! „ 868
I should have found in him a greater h. „ 873
he let his wisdom go For ease of h, „ 893 from his knees, Half-nestled at his h, „ 905 own gross h Would reckon worth the taking? „ 916
The vast necessity of h and life. „ 925
in his h Heard murmurs 'Lo, thou likewise Lancelot and E. 54

She braved a riotous h in asking for it. „ 359
reverence, Dearer to true young h's „ 419
To which it made a restless h, „ 550
With smiling face and frowning h, „ 553
That Lancelot is no more a lonely h. „ 602 kept The one-day-seen Sir Lancelot in her h, „ 747
And changed itself and echo'd in her h, „ 782
And in her h she answer'd it and said, „ 786 and in her h she laugh'd, Because he had not loosed it „ 808 her h's sad secret blazed itself In the h's colours „ 836 Making a treacherous quiet in his h, „ 883 speak the wish most near to your true h; „ 914
a stupid h To interpret ear and eye, „ 941
the heat is gone from out my h, „ 1116
And parted, laughing in his courtly h. „ 1176
in my h of h's I did acknowledge nobler. „ 1210
To loyal h's the value of all gifts Must vary „ 1214
For all true h's be blazon'd on her tomb „ 1344
To doubt her pureness were to want a h— „ 1377
'Ah simple h and sweet, Ye loved me, damsel, „ 1393
Arthur's greatest knight, a man Not after Arthur's h! „ 1420 and wrought into his h A way by love Holy Grail 10
men's h's became Clean for a season, „ 90
'I know not, for thy h is pure as snow.' „ 97
I was lifted up in h, and thought „ 361
And every homely secret in their h's, „ 552 that one only, who had ever Made my h leap; „ 580 maiden, all my h Went after her with longing: „ 582
And the Quest faded in my h. „ 600 to warm My cold h with a friend: „ 619
Small h was his after the Holy Quest: „ 657 strove To tear the twain asunder in my h, „ 786 and in her h She mutter'd, 'I have lighted on a fool, Pelleas and E. 112 his helpless h Leapt, and he cried, „ 130
More bondsman in his h than in his bonds. „ 239 thro' his h The fire of honour and all noble deeds „ 277

Heart (continued) vext his h, And marr'd his rest— Pelleas and E. 398 heard but his own steps, and his own h Beating, „ 416 Black as the harlot's h—hollow as a skull! „ 468
the words were flash'd into his h „ 503 hard his eyes; harder his h Seem'd; „ 512
Peace at his h, and gazing at a star „ 559 Hath the great h of knighthood in thee fail'd „ 596
yearn'd to shake The burthen off his h Last Tournament 180
Strength of h And might of limb, „ 197
It frighted all free fool from out thy h; „ 307
But in the h of Arthur pain was lord. „ 486 and felt the goodly hounds Yelp at his h, „ 504 heal'd Thy hurt and h with unguent and caress— „ 595 meats and wines, and satiated their h's— „ 725
Rankled in him and ruffled all his h, Guinevere 49
Sing, and unbind my h that I may weep.' „ 166
Then to her own sad h mutter'd the Queen, „ 213
Far on into the rich h of the west: „ 244
Sigh'd, and began to gather h again, „ 368 loathsome opposite Of all my h had destined did obtain „ 492 could speak Of the pure h, nor seem to glance „ 502 Better the King's waste hearth and aching h „ 524 while I weigh'd thy h with one Too wholly true „ 540
For mockery is the fume of little h's. „ 633 left me hope That in mine own h I can live down sin „ 636 and her h was loosed Within her, and she wept „ 667 Right well in h they know thee for the King. Pass. of Arthur 63 till all his h was cold With formless fear; „ 97
O Bedivere, for on my h hath fall'n Confusion, „ 143 that takes The h, and sometimes touches Lover's Tale i 17
As tho' there beat a h in either eye; „ 34 deep vault where the h of Hope Fell into dust, „ 94
The grasp of hopeless grief about my h, „ 126
Or from the after-fulness of my h, „ 146 neither Love, Warm in the h, his cradle, „ 158

my inmost h As to my outward hearing: „ 428
(A visible link into the home of my h), „ 431 love, soul, spirit, and h and strength. „ 460 Love wraps his wings on either side the h, „ 467 words stole with most prevailing sweetness Into my h, „ 554
And soul and h and body are all at ease: „ 556
My h paused—my raised eyelids would not fall, „ 571
For all the secret of her inmost h, „ 588
For in the sudden anguish of her h Loosed „ 702 syllables, that strove to rise From my full h. „ 712 deals comfortable words To h's wounded for ever; „ 718 let my h Break rather— „ 737
There be some h's so airily built, „ 803 Alone, and in the h of the great forest. „ ii 3 motions of my h seem'd far within me, „ 54 Makes the h tremble, and the sight run over „ 156 and each h Grew closer to the other, „ 186
My h was cloven with pain; „ 200
I turn'd: my h Shrank in me, „ iii 37 the bells, Those marriage-bells, echoing in ear and h— „ iv 3 as he said, that once was loving h's, H's that had beat with such a love „ 68 placing his true hand upon her h, 'O, you warm h,' he moaned, „ 75
It beat—the h—it beat: Faint—but it beat: „ 80
Raving of dead men's dust and beating h's. „ 140
Talk of lost hopes and broken h! „ 176
Yet glowing in a h of ruby— „ 196
The beauty that is dearest to his h— „ 249
'O my h's lord, would I could show you,' he says, 'Ev'n my h too.' „ 250
To show you what is dearest to my h, And my h too. „ 252 while I show you all my h.' „ 353

And while the people clamour’d for a k, „ 235

King (continued) Then while the K debated with himself Com. of Arthur 238
K Made feast for, saying, as they sat at meat, „ 246
Yea, but ye—think ye this k— „ 250
‘ O K,’ she cried, ‘ and I will tell thee : „ 254
‘ Be thou the k, and we will work thy will „ 259
Then the K in low deep tones, „ 260 flash A momentary likeness of the K : „ 271
She gave the K his huge cross-hilted sword, „ 286
So this great brand the k Took, „ 308 therefore Arthur’s sister ? ’ asked the K. „ 317
this K is fair Beyond the race of Britons „ 330
‘ Ay,’ said the K, ‘ and hear ye such a cry ? „ 337
K ! ’ she cried, ‘ and I will tell thee true : „ 339
I surely thought he would be k. „ 358
Merlin ever served about the K, Uther, before he died „ 365 two Left the still K, and passing forth to breathe, „ 369 cried ‘ The K ! Here is an heir for Uther ! ’ „ 385 Fear not to give this K thine only child, „ 413
Speak of the K ; and Merlin in our time Hath spoken „ 419 Till these and all men hail him for their k.’ „ 424
a phantom k, Now looming, and now lost ; „ 430 while the phantom k Sent out at times a voice ; „ 436 crying ‘ No k of ours, No son of Uther, and no k of ours ; ’ „ 439 but the K stood out in heaven, Crown’d. „ 443
the K That morn was married, „ 455
The Sun of May descended on their K, „ 462
‘ K and my lord, I love thee to the death ! ’ „ 470
Fulfil the boundless purpose of their K ! ’ „ 475
Arthur’s knighthood sang before the K :— „ 481
‘ Let the K reign.’ (repeat) Com. of Arthur 484, 487, 490, 493, 496, 499, 502
‘ Strike for the K and live ! his knights have heard That God hath told the K a secret word. Com. of Arthur 488
‘ Strike for the K and die ! and if thou diest, The K is K, „ 494
‘ The K will follow Christ, and we the K „ 500
To wage my wars, and worship me their K ; „ 508
the K Drew in the petty princedoms under him, „ 516 as a false knight Or evil k before my lance Gareth and L. 6
Then were I wealthier than a leash of k’s.’ „ 51 ever since when traitor to the K He fought „ 76 mother, there was once a K, like ours. „ 101
the K Set two before him. One was fair, „ 103
And these were the conditions of the K : „ 107 follow the Christ, the K, Live pure, speak true, right wrong, follow the K— „ 117
Or will not deem him, wholly proven K—Albeit in mine own heart I knew him K, „ 122
Life, limbs, for one that is not proven K ? „ 129
Who should be K save him who makes us free ? ’ „ 138
Before you ask the K to make thee knight, „ 145
Nor tell my name to any—no, not the K.’ „ 171 city of Enchanters, built By fairy K’s.’ „ 200 this K is not the K, But only changeling out of Fairyland, „ 202 come to see The glories of our K : „ 244 Doubt if the K be K at all, or come From Fairy-land ; and whether this be built By magic, and by fairy K’s and Queens ; „ 246
a Fairy K And Fairy Queens have built the city, „ 258
For there is nothing in it as it seems Saving the K ; tho’ some there be that hold The K a shadow, and the city real : „ 265 for the K Will bind thee by such vows, „ 269
And now thou goest up to mock the K, „ 292 ancient k’s who did their days in stone ; „ 305
As in the presence of a gracious k. „ 316
K Throned, and delivering doom— „ 320
The truthful K will doom me when I speak.’ „ 324 and faith in their great K, with pure Affection, „ 330 a widow crying to the K, ‘ A boon, Sir K ! „ 333
‘ A boon, Sir K ! Thine enemy K, am I. „ 351
‘ A boon, Sir K ! I am her kinsman, I. „ 365

King (continued) came Sir Kay, the seneschal, and cried, ' A boon, Sir K ! Gareth and L. 368 Arthur, ' We sit K, to help the wrong'd Thro' all our realm. " 371 k's of old had doom'd thee to the flames, " 374 that rough humour of the k's of old Return " 377 According to the justice of the K : Then, be he guilty, by that deathless K Who lived and died " 381 name of evil savour in the land, The Cornish k. " 386 Delivering, that his lord, the vassal k, " 391 Being a k, he trusted his liege-lord " 396 made him knight because men call him k. " 420
The k's we found, ye know we stay'd their hands From war among themselves, but left them k's ; " 422
Mark hath tarnish'd the great name of k, " 426 Approach'd between them toward the K, " 441
' A boon, Sir K (his voice was all ashamed), " 442
To him the K, ' A goodly youth and worth a goodlier boon ! " 448 Think ye this fellow will poison the K's dish ? " 471 Gareth bow'd himself With all obedience to the K, " 488 one would praise the love that linkt the K And Lancelot—how the K had saved his life In battle twice, and Lancelot once the K's— " 492 On Caer-Eryri's highest found the K, A naked babe, " 500 nay, the K's—Descend into the city : ' " 539 whereon he sought The K alone, and found, " 541
the K's calm eye Fell on, and check'd, " 547
And uttermost obedience to the K.' " 555
' My K, for hardihood I can promise thee. " 557 K—' Make thee my knight in secret ? " 563
Let Lancelot know, my K, let Lancelot know, " 567 K—' But wherefore would ye men should wonder at you ? " 569 rather for the sake of me, their K, " 571 on Gareth's arm Smiled the great K, " 579
' O K, for thou hast driven the foe without, " 593 Rest would I not, Sir K, an I were k, " 597
' They be of foolish fashion, O Sir K, " 628 such As have nor law nor k ; " 632
' A boon, Sir K—this quest ! ' " 647
K, thou knowest thy kitchen-knave am I, " 649 Thy promise, K,' and Arthur glancing at him, " 652
she lifted either arm, ' Fie on thee, K ! " 658 Fled down the lane of access to the K, " 661 pavement where the K would pace At sunrise, " 667 And out by this main doorway past the K. " 671 and cried, ' God bless the K, and all his fellowship ! ' " 698 the K hath past his time—My scullion knave ! " 709 Thence, if the K awaken from his craze, " 724
' Kay, wherefore wilt thou go against the K, " 727
But ever meekly served the K in thee ? " 729
' Wherefore did the K Scorn me ? " 737
In uttermost obedience to the K. " 833
And pray'd the K would grant me Lancelot " 856 whether she be mad, or else the K, " 875 To crave again Sir Lancelot of the K. " 882 shame the K for only yielding me My champion " 898 lay Among the ashes and wedded the K's son.' " 904
The K in utter scorn Of thee and thy much folly " 918 take his horse And arms, and so return him to the K. " 956 and thee the K Gave me to guard, " 1013 and Gareth sent him to the K. " 1051 hath not our good K Who lent me thee, " 1070 thought the K Scorn'd me and mine ; " 1165 Saving that you mistrusted our good K " 1172 knight art thou To the K's best wish. " 1259
They hate the K, and Lancelot, the K's friend, " 1418 going to the k, He made this pretext, Marr. of Geraint 32 K himself should please To cleanse this common sewer " 38 and the k Mused for a little on his plea, " 41 Forgetful of his promise to the K, " 50 these things he told the K. Then the good K gave order to let blow His horns " 151 not mindful of his face In the K's hall, " 192

King (continued) were she the daughter of a k, Marr. of Geraint 229
In the great battle fighting for the K. " 596
But this was in the garden of a k ; " 656 children of the K in cloth of gold Glanced " 664
I come the mouthpiece of our K to Doorm (The K is close behind me) Geraint and E. 796 Submit, and hear the judgment of the K.' " 799
' He hears the judgment of the K of k's,' " 800 in the K's own ear Speak what has chanced ; " 808 Fearing the mild face of the blameless K, " 812
the K himself Advanced to greet them, " 878
So spake the K ; low bow'd the Prince, " 920 came The K's own leech to look into his hurt ; " 923 blameless K went forth and cast his eyes " 932 to guard the justice of the K : " 934
there he kept the justice of the K " 956
In battle, fighting for the blameless K. " 970 Pellam the K, who held and lost with Lot Balin and Balan 1
ye be sent for by the K,' They follow'd ; " 48 K, Methought that if we sat beside the well, " 64 move To music with thine Order and the K. " 77
' Sir K ' they brought report ' we hardly found, " 94
the K Took, as in rival heat, to holy things ; " 99
This gray K Show'd us a shrine wherein were wonders— " 108 the K So prizes—overprizes—gentleness. " 183
I pray the K To let me bear some token of his Queen " 187
she smiled and turn'd her to the K, " 201
The crown is but the shadow of the K, " 203
But light to me ! no shadow, O my K, " 207 move In music with his Order, and the K. " 212 court and K And all the kindly warmth of Arthur's hall " 235 Whom all men rate the k of courtesy. " 257
Our noble K will send thee his own leech— " 275 stay'd to crave permission of the K, " 288 the castle of a K, the hall Of Pellam, " 331 found the greetings both of knight and K " 342 and break the K And all his Table.' " 458 Behold, I fly from shame, A lustful K, " 474 Wilt surely guide me to the warrior K, " 478 wander'd from her own K's golden head, " 513
' Rise, my sweet K, and kiss me on the lips, " 516 Meet is it the good K be not deceived. " 533
Mark The Cornish K, had heard a wandering voice, Merlin and V. 8
My father died in battle against the K, " 42
Thy blessing, stainless K ! " 54
My father died in battle for thy K, " 72 Poor wretch—no friend !—and now by Mark the K " 75 stainless bride of stainless K— " 81 narrow court and lubber K, farewell ! " 119 the K Had gazed upon her blankly and gone by : " 160 Vivien should attempt the blameless K. " 164
Had built the K his havens, ships, and halls, " 168
(As sons of k's loving in pupilage " 517
' There lived a k in the most Eastern East, " 555
The K impaled him for his piracy ; " 569 brutes of mountain back That carry k's in castles, " 577 a wizard who might teach the K Some charm, " 583
He promised more than ever k has given, " 586
the K Pronounced a dismal sentence, " 590
Or like a k, not to be trifled with— " 593
And so by force they dragg'd him to the K. And then he taught the K to charm the Queen In such-wise, that no man could see her more, Nor saw she save the K, who wrought the charm, " 640 K Made proffer of the league of golden mines, " 645 holy k, whose hymns Are chanted in the minster, " 765
A rumour runs, she took him for the K, " 776 Arthur, blameless K and stainless man ? ' " 779 the good k means to blind himself, " 783 were he not crown'd K, coward, and fool.' " 789
' O true and tender ! O my liege and K ! " 791 the court, the K, dark in your light, " 875 Arthur, long before they crown'd him K, Lancelot and E. 34
two brothers, one a k, had met And fought " 39
he, that once was k, had on a crown Of diamonds, " 45

King (continued) Heard murmurs, ' Lo, thou likewise shalt be K.' Thereafter, when a K, he had the gems Pluck'd from the crown, Lancelot and E. 55
I chanced Divinely, are the kingdom's, not the K's— " 59 Lancelot, where he stood beside the K. " 85
' Sir K, mine ancient wound is hardly whole, " 93
the K Glanced first at him, then her, " 94 take Their pastime now the trustful K is gone ! ' " 101 while the k Would listen smiling. " 115
' Arthur, my lord, Arthur, the faultless K, " 121
I Before a k who honours his own word, " 143
our true k Will then allow your pretext, " 152
I might guess thee chief of those, After the K, " 184
By castle Gurnion, where the glorious K " 293
I myself beheld the K Charge at the head " 303
the K, However mild he seems at home, " 310
The dread Pendragon, Britain's K of k's, " 424 Until they found the clear-faced K, " 432
Blazed the last diamond of the nameless k. " 444 K, duke, earl, Count, baron— " 464 waste marches, k's of desolate isles, " 527 knights and k's, there breathes not one of you " 540 Wroth that the K's command to sally forth " 560 made him leave The banquet, and concourse of knights and k's. " 562 ridd'n away to die ? ' So fear'd the K, " 568
And when the K demanded how she knew, " 575 hide his name From all men, ev'n the K, " 581
Then replied the K: ' Far lovelier in our Lancelot " 588 Surely his K and most familiar friend " 592 flung herself Down on the great K's couch, " 610
O loyal nephew of our noble K, " 652
Why slight your K ! And lose the quest " 654
' Right was the K ! our Lancelot ! " 665
there told the K What the K knew, " 706
The seldom-frowning K frown'd, " 715 Obedience is the courtesy due to k's.' " 718
Some read the K's face, some the Queen's, " 727 prize the diamond sent you by the K: ' " 821 told him all the tale Of K and Prince, " 824 Until we found the palace of the K. " 1044 Until I find the palace of the K. " 1051
there the K will know me and my love, " 1058
Or come to take the K to Fairyland ? " 1257 While thus they babbled of the K, the K Came " 1260
Low in the dust of half-forgotten k's, " 1338
Then answer'd Lancelot, ' Fair she was, my K, " 1374
' Free love, so bound, were freëst,' said the K. " 1380
Why did the K dwell on my name to me ? " 1402
' Thou art fair, my child, As a k's son,' " 1410 Stamp'd with the image of the K; Holy Grail 27 crown thee k Far in the spiritual city : ' " 161
' What said the K ? Did Arthur take the vow ? ' ' Nay, for my lord,' said Percivale, ' the K, Was not in hall : " 204 K arose and went To smoke the scandalous hive " 213 whence the K Look'd up, calling aloud, " 218 Behold it, crying, ' We have still a K.' " 245 Streams thro' the twelve great battles of our K. " 250 to this hall full quickly rode the K, " 258 then the K Spake to me, being nearest, " 267
My K, thou wouldst have sworn.' " 278
' Ah, Galahad, Galahad,' said the K, " 293 (Brother, the K was hard upon his knights) " 299 it pleased the K to range me close After Sir Galahad); " 307
K, Before ye leave him for this Quest, " 324 Built by old k's, age after age, " 340
K himself had fears that it would fall, " 341
the K himself could hardly speak For grief, " 354
' Thereafter, the dark warning of our K, " 368 and one will crown me k Far in the spiritual city ; " 482 save that some ancient k Had built a way, " 501 Rejoicing in ourselves and in our K— " 687 Tell me, and what said each, and what the K ? ' " 710 words Of so great men as Lancelot and our K " 713

King (continued) those that had not, stood before the K, Holy Grail 724
Among the strange devices of our k's; " 730 stood, Until the K espied him, saying " 755 Lancelot,' ask'd the K, ' my friend, " 764
' O K ! '—and when he paused, methought I spied " 767
' O K, my friend, if friend of thine I be, " 769
But such a blast, my K, began to blow, " 795
Now bolden'd by the silence of his K,— " 857
' O K, my liege,' he said, ' Hath Gawain fail'd " 858
' Deafer,' said the blameless K, " 869 if the K Had seen the sight he would have sworn the vow : " 903
the K must guard That which he rules, " 905 spake the K: I knew not all he meant.' " 920 Sir K, All that belongs to knighthood, Pelleas and E. 8
there were those who knew him near the K, " 15 to find Caerleon and the K, " 22
I Go likewise : shall I lead you to the K ? ' " 107 he knew himself Loved of the K: " 154
she mock'd his vows and the great K, " 252 the K hath bound And sworn me to this brotherhood ; ' " 448
the K Hath made us fools and liars. " 478
' Is the K true ? ' ' The K ! ' said Percivale. " 535
To whom the K, ' Peace to thine eagle-borne Last Tournament 33
Arm'd for a day of glory before the K. " 55
A churl, to whom indignantly the K. " 61
' Tell thou the K and all his liars, " 77 and tend him curiously Like a k's heir, " 91 Yet better if the K abide, " 109 for the K has will'd it, it is well.' " 111 the K Turn'd to him saying, ' Is it then so well ? " 113 cursed The dead babe and the follies of the K; " 163
Are winners in this pastime of our K. " 199
Dagonet, skipping, ' Arthur, the K's; " 262 Inpocence the Queen Lent to the K, and Innocence the K Gave for a prize— " 294
' Fear God : honour the K— " 302 but when the K Had made thee fool, " 305
—but never a k's fool.' " 324 our K Was victor wellnigh day by day, " 334 whether he were K by courtesy, Or K by right— " 341 so went harping down The black k's highway, " 343 is the K thy brother fool ? ' " 352
' Ay, ay, my brother fool, the k of fools ! " 354
Mark her lord had past, the Cornish K, " 382
Isolt, the daughter of the K ? " 397
In blood-red armour sallying, howl'd to the K, " 443
Lo ! art thou not that eunuch-hearted K " 445
Art thou K ?—Look to thy life ! ' " 454 Nor heard the K for their own cries, " 472 ere I mated with my shambling k, " 544
K was all fulfill'd with gratefulness, " 593
The man of men, our K—My God, the power Was once in vows when men believed the K ! " 648 thro' their vows The K prevailing made his realm :— " 651
I swore to the great K, and am forsworn. " 661 thro' the flesh and blood Of our old K's: " 687 Order, which our K Hath newly founded, " 741
He chill'd the popular praises of the K Guinevere 13
He, reverencing k's blood in a bad man, " 37
he was answer'd softly by the K And all his Table. " 44 Beside the placid breathings of the K, " 69
Till ev'n the clear face of the guileless K, " 85
Before the people, and our lord the K. " 92
(When the good K should not be there) " 97 while the K Was waging war on Lancelot : " 155 what a hate the people and the K Must hate me,' " 157 weigh your sorrows with our lord the K's, " 191 the K's grief For his own self, and his own Queen, " 196 talk at Almesbury About the good K and his wicked Queen, And were I such a K with such a Queen, " 209
But were I such a K, it could not be.' " 212
What canst thou know of K's and Tables Round, " 228 sang the K As wellnigh more than man, " 286 Till he by miracle was approven K: " 296

King (continued) Lancelot or our lord the K?' Guinevere 326
the K In open battle or the tilting-field „ 331
Sir Lancelot's, were as noble as the K's, „ 351
That crown'd the state pavilion of the K, „ 399 point where first she saw the K Ride toward her „ 403
Then on a sudden a cry, 'The K.' „ 411
She made her face a darkness from the K: „ 417
but tho' changed, the K's: „ 421
He spared to lift his hand against the K „ 437
That I the K should greatly care to live; „ 452
I was first of all the k's who drew The knighthood-errant „ 460 and swear To reverence the K, as if he were Their conscience, and their conscience as their K, „ 468 Better the K's waste hearth and aching heart „ 524 nay, they never were the K's. „ 552
They summon me their K to lead mine hosts „ 570
She felt the K's breath wander o'er her neck, „ 582
The moony vapour rolling round the K, „ 601 Gone, my lord the K, My own true lord! „ 616
he, the K, Call'd me polluted: „ 619 blessed be the K, who hath forgiven My wickedness „ 634 Is there none Will tell the K I love him „ 651 broke The vast design and purpose of the K. „ 670 wrought the ruin of my lord the K.' „ 689 Heard in his tent the moanings of the K: Pass. of Arthur 8
Hail, K! to-morrow thou shalt pass away. „ 34
'O me, my K, let pass whatever will, „ 51 Right well in heart they know thee for the K. „ 63 brake the petty k's, and fought with Rome, „ 68
k who fights his people fights himself. „ 72 rose the K and moved his host by night, „ 79
he that fled no further fly the K; „ 89
pale K glanced across the field Of battle: „ 126
Had held the field of battle was the K: „ 138
Nor whence I am, nor whether I be K. Behold, I seem but K among the dead.' „ 145
'My K, K everywhere! and so the dead have k's, There also will I worship thee as K. „ 147
Then spake the K: 'My house hath been my doom. „ 154 even while they brake them, own'd me K. „ 158
That quick or dead thou holdest me for K. K am I, whatsoever be their cry; „ 161
And uttering this the K Made at the man: „ 164
And took it, and have worn it, like a k; „ 201
'It is not meet, Sir K, to leave thee thus, „ 208
So strode he back slow to the wounded K. (repeat) „ 233, 280
if a k demand An act unprofitable, „ 263
The K is sick, and knows not what he does. „ 265
Stored in some treasure-house of mighty k's, „ 269
Authority forgets a dying k, „ 289
And lightly went the other to the K. „ 315
sigh'd the K, Muttering and murmuring at his ear, „ 346 three Queens Put forth their hands, and took the K, „ 374
So like a shatter'd column lay the K; „ 389 charged Before the eyes of ladies and of k's. „ 393 and he groan'd, 'The K is gone.' „ 443

he is not k but knave.' „ 922
And Gareth silent gazed upon the k, „ 933
Thou art not k but knave,' Said Gareth, 'Damsel, whether knave or k, „ 942 and either k at once, Hurl'd as a stone „ 964 K, Thy life is thine at her command. „ 982 thou art not k but knave.' „ 1006
k or knave—The knave that doth thee service as full k Is all as good, meseems, as any k Toward thy sister's freeing.' „ 1015
knave, because thou strikest as a k, „ 1020 the new k Had fear he might be shamed; „ 1043
the k, That named himself the Star of Evening, „ 1089
O knave, as noble as any of all the k's— „ 1136 and, good faith, I fain had added—K, „ 1162
He scarce is k, yea but half-man, „ 1176 methinks There rides no k, not Lancelot, his great self, „ 1182 k's on horse Sculptured, and deckt in slowly-waning hues. „ 1194
'Sir Knave, my k, a hermit once was here, „ 1196
'Stay, felon k, I avenge me for my friend.' „ 1220
And k of Arthur, here lie thrown by whom I know not, „ 1233
Courteous as any k—but now, if k, „ 1250
K, knave, prince and fool, I hate thee and for ever.' „ 1255
k art thou To the King's best wish. „ 1258 Prince, K, Hail, K and Prince, „ 1270 merry am I to find my goodly knave Is k and noble. „ 1292
'K, Slay me not: my three brethren bad me do it, „ 1409
What madness made thee challenge the chief k „ 1416 brave Geraint, a k of Arthur's court, Marr. of Geraint 1 bandit earls, and caitiff k's, Assassins, „ 35
Enid rode, And fifty k's rode with them, „ 44
Weeping for some gay k in Arthur's hall.' „ 118 rode Full slowly by a k, lady, and dwarf; „ 187
the k Had vizor up, and show'd a youthful face, „ 188
when she put her horse toward the k, „ 200
Had put his horse in motion toward the k, „ 206
'Pardon me, O stranger k; „ 286
the good k's horse stands in the court; „ 370
if he be the k whom late I saw Ride into that new fortress „ 406 what k soever be in field Lays claim to „ 486 errant k's And ladies came, and by and by the town Flow'd in, „ 545
the k With some surprise and thrice as much disdain „ 556 Enid was aware of three tall k's On horseback, Geraint and E. 56 said the second, 'yonder comes a k.' „ 126 Held his head high, and thought himself a k, „ 242
A k of Arthur's court, who laid his lance In rest, „ 775
'The voice of Enid,' said the k; „ 780
I took you for a bandit k of Doorm; „ 786
Now, made a k of Arthur's Table Round, „ 793
when the k besought him, 'Follow me, „ 807
Than if some k of mine, risking his life, „ 915
And fifty k's rode with them to the shores Of Severn, „ 954 two strange k's Who sit near Camelot Balin and Balan 10 challenging And overthrowing every k who comes. „ 13
For whatsoever k against us came „ 35
hurl'd to ground what k soever spurr'd Against us, „ 66
worthier to be thine Than twenty Balins, Balan k. „ 69 Rise, my true k. „ 75
in those deep woods we found A k „ 121 and a transitory word Make k or churl or child „ 162 Balin bare the crown, and all the k's Approved him, „ 209 not worthy to be k; A churl, a clown!' „ 285 found the greetings both of k and King „ 342
(for Arthur's k's Were hated strangers in the hall) „ 351

Knight (continued) Hail, royal k, we break on thy sweet rest, Balin and Balan 470
the k, with whom I rode, Hath suffer'd mis-adventure, „ 475 nor Prince Nor k am I, but one that hath defamed „ 484 this good k Told me, that twice a wanton damsel came, „ 608
It more beseems the perfect virgin k Merlin and V. 22
She hated all the k's, and heard in thought „ 150
some corruption crept among his k's, „ 154
but afterwards He made a stalwart k. „ 482 saw The k's, the court, the King, „ 875 and show'd them to his k's, Saying, Lancelot and E. 57
the k's Are half of them our enemies, „ 98
As to k's, Them surely can I silence with all ease. „ 108 our k's at feast Have pledged us in this union, „ 114
Then answer'd Lancelot, the chief of k's: (repeat) „ 140, 187 allow your pretext, O my k, As all for glory; „ 153
He loves it in his k's more than himself: „ 157 dying down as the great k Approach'd them: „ 179
Is that an answer for a noble k? „ 201 shame me not Before this noble k,' „ 208 for, k, the maiden dreamt That some one put this diamond „ 211
To ride to Camelot with this noble k: „ 220 slight disparagement Before the stranger k, „ 235
the great k, the darling of the court, „ 261
For if his own k cast him down, he laughs Saying, his k's are better men than he— „ 313 knew there lived a k Not far from Camelot, „ 401 wrathful that a stranger k Should do and almost overdo „ 468
He bore a k of old repute to the earth, „ 492
all the k's, His party, cried 'Advance „ 502
His party, k's of utmost North and West, „ 526
'Lo, Sire, our k, thro' whom we won the day, „ 529
So great a k as we have seen to-day— „ 533
O Gawain, and ride forth and find the k. „ 537 k's and kings, there breathes not one of you „ 540 since the k Came not to us, of us to claim the prize, „ 543 a good k, but therewithal Sir Modred's brother, „ 557 banquet, and concourse of k's and kings. „ 562
Albeit I know my k's fantastical, „ 594
What of the k with the red sleeve? „ 621
Here was the k, and here he left a shield; „ 634
Who dream'd my k the greatest k of all.' „ 667
'that you love This greatest k, your pardon! „ 669 know full well Where your great k is hidden, „ 690
the King knew 'Sir Lancelot is the k.' „ 707 the k's at banquet twice or thrice Forgot to drink „ 736 sweet and serviceable To noble k's in sickness, „ 768 Right fain were I to learn this k were whole, „ 772 Woke the sick k, and while he roll'd his eyes „ 819
the great k in his mid-sickness made „ 878
More specially should your good k be poor, „ 956
In all your quarrels will I be your k, „ 961 the King Came girt with k's: „ 1261
Sir Lancelot, As thou art a k peerless.' „ 1282
'O my k, It will be to thy worship, as my k, „ 1326
when the k's had laid her comely head „ 1337 Strike down the lusty and long practised k, „ 1360
My k, the great Sir Lancelot of the Lake.' „ 1373
Pure, as you ever wish your k's to be. „ 1375
what profits me my name Of greatest k? „ 1414
Alas for Arthur's greatest k, „ 1419
'Nay,' said the k; 'for no such earthly passion mine. Holy Grail 30
one of your own k's, a guest of ours, „ 40
And tell thy brother k's to fast and pray, „ 126
Said Arthur, when he dubb'd him k; and none, In so young youth, was ever made a k Till Galahad; „ 137
'My k, my love, my k of heaven, „ 157
every k beheld his fellow's face As in a glory, and all the k's arose, „ 191 Lancelot sware, and many among the k's, „ 201
there so oft with all his k's Feasted, „ 223

Knight (continued) 'Woe is me, my k's,' he cried, Holy Grail 275
he ask'd us, k by k, if any Had seen it, „ 283 (Brother, the King was hard upon his k's) „ 299 hath overborne Five k's at once, and every younger k, Unproven, „ 303 K's that in twelve great battles splash'd „ 311
how often, O my k's Your places being vacant „ 316
The yet-unbroken strength of all his k's, „ 326 overthrew So many k's that all the people cried, „ 335 k's and ladies wept, and rich and poor Wept, „ 353
my strong lance had beaten down the k's, „ 363 calling me the greatest of all k's, „ 595 thou art our greatest k, Our Lady says it, „ 603 Saw ye none beside, None of your k's?' „ 632 found ye all your k's return'd, „ 708 and when thy k's Sware, I sware with them „ 777 Mean k's, to whom the moving of my sword „ 790 painting on the wall Or shield of k; „ 830
A reckless and irreverent k was he, „ 856
Could all of true and noble in k and man „ 882
'And spake I not too truly, O my k's? „ 888
KING ARTHUR made new k's to fill the gap Pelleas and E. 1
'Make me thy k, because I know, „ 7 and Arthur made him k. And this new k, Sir Pelleas of the isles— „ 16
Beat like a strong k on his helm, „ 23
Arm'd as ye see, to tilt against the k's There at Caerleon, „ 65
Three k's were thereamong; and they too smiled, „ 96 her k's And all her damsels too were gracious „ 121
Then glanced askew at those three k's „ 134 and strange k's From the four winds came in: „ 147 and him his new-made k Worshipt, „ 154
For Arthur, loving his young k, „ 159 her look Bright for all others, cloudier on her k— „ 177 those three k's all set their faces home, „ 187
Some rough old k who knew the worldly way, „ 192
Then calling her three k's, she charged them „ 219 walking on the walls With her three k's, „ 226 Yield me thy love and know me for thy k.' „ 249 her anger, leaving Pelleas, burn'd Full on her k's „ 290 her k's Laugh'd not, but thrust him bounden out of door. „ 313 whom late our Arthur made K of his table; „ 320
I chant thy praise As prowest k and truest lover, „ 350
'Pity on him,' she answer'd, 'a good k, „ 386 droned her lurdane k's Slumbering, „ 430 and thought, 'What! slay a sleeping k? „ 448
'Alas that ever a k should be so false.' „ 450
as the one true k on earth, And only lover; „ 494 either k Drew back a space, and when they closed, „ 572
there with her k's and dames was Guinevere. „ 588
she, turning to Pelleas, 'O young k, „ 595 the purest of thy k's May win them for the purest Last Tournament 49 everywhere the k's Arm'd for a day of glory „ 54
A hundred goodly ones—the Red K, he— „ 70
Red K Brake in upon me and drave them „ 71 whatsoever his own k's have sworn My k's have sworn the counter to it— „ 79
My k's are all adulterers like his own, „ 84
My younger k's, new-made, in whom your flower „ 99 leave The leading of his younger k's to me. „ 110
Or have I dream'd the bearing of our k's „ 120
He spoke, and taking all his younger k's, „ 126
a k cast down Before his throne of arbitration „ 161
An ocean-sounding welcome to one k, „ 168
O chief k, Right arm of Arthur in the battlefield, „ 201 know myself the wisest k of all.' „ 248
one true k—Sole follower of the vows'— „ 302
'K, an ye fling those rubies round my neck „ 312
the k's, Glorying in each new glory, „ 335
And therebeside a horn, inflamed the k's „ 434
the Red K heard, and all, „ 441
Slain was the brother of my paramour By a k of thine, „ 449
To hang whatever k of thine I fought And tumbled. „ 453 k's, who watch'd him, roar'd And shouted „ 468
O Sir K, What dame or damsel have ye kneel'd to last?' „ 549

Knight (continued) Far other was the Tristram, Arthur's k ! Last Tournament 634 every k Believed himself a greater than himself, „ 676
I loved This knightliest of all k's, „ 711
No k of Arthur's noblest dealt in scorn ; Guinevere 40 said my father, and himself was k „ 234 every k Had whatsoever meat he long'd for „ 264
' Sir Lancelot, as became a noble k, „ 328
If ever Lancelot, that most noble k, „ 345 Reputed the best k and goodliest man, „ 382 hand against the King Who made him k : but many a k was slain ; „ 438

Then others, following these my mightiest k's, „ 489
And miss the wonted number of my k's, „ 498
Lords of the White Horse, heathen, and k's, „ 574
Among his warring senses, to thy k's— „ 640
First made and latest left of all the k's, Pass. of Arthur 2 and k's Once thine, whom thou hast loved, „ 60
To war against my people and my k's. „ 71
And they my k's, who loved me once, „ 73
shouts of heathen and the traitor k's, „ 113
The goodliest fellowship of famous k's „ 183
the mighty bones of ancient men, Old k's, „ 216 beseem'd Thy fealty, nor like a noble k : „ 243
thou, the latest-left of all my k's, „ 292

But on that day when L fled the lists, ,, 525
He seem'd to me another L—Yea, twenty times I thought him L— ,, 534 after L, Tristram, and Geraint And Gareth, ,, 556
L who hath come Despite the wound he spake of, ,, 565
'Nay, lord,' she said. 'And where is L?' ,, 572
L told me of a common talk That men went down before his spear at a touch, But knowing he was L; ,, 577
'Far lovelier in our L had it been, ,, 589
So fine a fear in our large L ,, 595
That L is no more a lonely heart. ,, 602
Gawain saw Sir L's azure lions, crown'd with gold, ,, 663
'Right was the King! our L! that true man!' ,, 665
To cross our mighty L in his loves! ,, 688
What the King knew, 'Sir L is the knight.' ,, 707
'The maid of Astolat loves Sir L, Sir L loves the maid of Astolat.' ,, 725
But sorrowing L should have stoop'd so low, ,, 732 Forgot to drink to L and the Queen, And pledging L and the lily maid ,, 737 kept The one-day-seen Sir L in her heart, ,, 747 How fares my lord Sir L?' ,, 795
Sir L! How know ye my lord's name is L?' ,, 796
she saw the casque Of L on the wall: ,, 806
L look'd and was perplext in mind, ,, 838
L Would, tho' he call'd his wound a little hurt ,, 851
But when Sir L's deadly hurt was whole, ,, 904
She came before Sir L, for she thought ,, 908
And L ever prest upon the maid ,, 911
L saw that she withheld her wish, ,, 920
'Ah, sister,' answer'd L, 'what is this?' ,, 931
L answer'd, 'Had I chosen to wed, ,, 934
Too courteous are ye, fair Lord L. ,, 972
L said, 'That were against me: ,, 975
And L knew the little clinking sound; ,, 983
That L knew that she was looking at him. ,, 985

Lancelot (a knight of the Round Table) (continued) there the great Sir L muse at me; Lancelot and E. 1055
L, who coldly went, nor bad me one: ,, 1057
Seeing it is no more Sir L's fault Not to love me, ,, 1075
'Is it for L, is it for my dear lord? ,, 1105
'For L and the Queen and all the world, ,, 1107 the little bed on which I died For L's love, ,, 1118
Sir L at the palace craved Audience of Guinevere, ,, 1162
L kneeling utter'd, 'Queen, Lady, my liege, ,, 1179 quicker of belief Than you believe me, L of the Lake. ,, 1205
while Sir L leant, in half disdain At love, ,, 1238
And L later came and mused at her, ,, 1268
'Most noble lord, Sir L of the Lake, ,, 1272
Pray for my soul thou too, Sir L, ,, 1281
Then freely spoke Sir L to them all: ,, 1289
L sad beyond his wont, to see The maiden buried, ,, 1333
the shield of L at her feet Be carven, ,, 1341
Who mark'd Sir L where he moved apart, Drew near, and sigh'd in passing, 'L, Forgive me; ,, 1349
L, my L, thou in whom I have Most joy ,, 1356
My knight, the great Sir L of the Lake.' ,, 1373 answer'd L, 'Fair she was, my King, ,, 1374
And L answer'd nothing, but he went, ,, 1387
L, whom the Lady of the Lake Caught ,, 1404
So groan'd Sir L in remorseful pain, ,, 1428 some Call'd him a son of L, and some said Holy Grail 144
For when was L wanderingly lewd? ,, 148
Sir Bors, our L's cousin, sware, And L sware, ,, 200
L is L, and hath overborne Five knights at once, and every younger knight, Unproven, holds himself as L, ,, 302
Queen, Who rose by L, wail'd and shriek'd ,, 356 hast thou seen him—L?—Once,' ,, 639 L shouted, 'Stay me not! I have been the sluggard, ,, 643 and sorrowing for our L, Because his former madness, ,, 648
For L's kith and kin so worship him ,, 651
L might have seen, The Holy Cup of healing; ,, 654 great men as L and our King Pass not from door to door ,, 713 entering, push'd Athwart the throng to L, ,, 753
'Then there remain'd but L, for the rest ,, 760
L,' ask'd the King, 'my friend, Our mightiest, ,, 764
'Our mightiest!' answer'd L, with a groan; ,, 766 ceasing, L left The hall long silent, ,, 853 Blessed are Bors, L and Percivale, ,, 874
'Nay—but thou errest, L: ,, 881
she said, 'Had ye not held your L in your bower, Pelleas and E. 182 hast not heard That L'—there he check'd himself ,, 527 from the city gates Issued Sir L riding ,, 557
L, saying, 'What name hast thou That ridest here ,, 562 blaze the crime of L and the Queen.' 'First over me,' said L, 'shalt thou pass.' ,, 570
L, 'Yea, between my lips—and sharp; ,, 577
L, with his heel upon the fall'n, ,, 580
'Rise, weakling; I am L; say thy say.' And L slowly rode his warhorse back To Camelot, ,, 582 wonderingly she gazed on L So soon return'd, ,, 589
'Have ye fought?' She ask'd of L. ,, 593
For Arthur and Sir L riding once Last Tournament 10
Sir L from the perilous nest, ,, 18
L won, methought, for thee to wear.' ,, 38
Sir L, sitting in my place Enchair'd ,, 103
Speak, L, thou art silent: is it well?' Thereto Sir L answer'd, 'It is well: ,, 107
Arthur rose and L follow'd him, ,, 112
L, Round whose sick head all night, ,, 137
L knew, had held sometime with pain ,, 178
Tristram won, and L gave, the gems, ,, 190
Tristram, half plagued by L's languorous mood, ,, 194 gladden their sad eyes, our Queen's And L's, ,, 223 but she, haughty, ev'n to him, L; ,, 563
For when had L utter'd aught so gross ,, 631
he that closes both Is perfect, he is L— ,, 709 his aims Were sharpen'd by strong hate for L. Guinevere 20
Sir L passing by Spied where he couch'd, ,, 30
L pluck'd him by the heel, ,, 34
So Sir L holp To raise the Prince, ,, 45

Lancelot (a knight of the Round Table) (continued) Sir L told
This matter to the Queen, Guinevere 53
'O L, get thee hence to thine own land, „ 88
And L ever promised, but remain'd, „ 93
'O L, if thou love me get thee hence.' „ 95
L, who rushing outward lionlike Leapt on him, „ 107
She answer'd, 'L, wilt thou hold me so? „ 116
So L got her horse, Set her thereon, „ 122 while the King Was waging war on L: „ 156 gone is he To wage grim war against Sir L „ 193
he foresaw This evil work of L and the Queen?' „ 307 himself would say Sir L had the noblest; „ 320 you moved Among them, L or our lord the King?' „ 326
'Sir L, as became a noble knight, „ 328
L's needs must be a thousand-fold Less noble, „ 338
If ever L, that most noble knight, „ 345
Sir L's, were as noble as the King's, „ 351
L came, Reputed the best knight „ 381 not like him, 'Not like my L'— „ 407
Sir L, my right arm The mightiest of my knights, „ 429
Then came thy shameful sin with L; „ 487 touch thy lips, they are not mine, But L's: „ 552 not a smaller soul, Nor L, nor another. „ 567 yearn'd for warmth and colour which I found In L— „ 648 and most human too, Not L, nor another. „ 650
when we see it, Not L, nor another.' „ 661

Men saw the goodly hills of Somerset, ,, 828
O PURBLIND race of miserable men, Geraint and E. 1
as a m upon his tongue May break it, ,, 42 like a m That skins the wild beast after slaying him, ,, 92
And every m were larger-limb'd than I, ,, 148
And if I fall, cleave to the better m.' ,, 152
yet the sapling grew: So lay the m transfixt. ,, 166
I will tell him How great a m thou art: he loves to know When men of mark are in his territory: ,, 228 and return With victual for these men, ,, 240
Or two wild men supporters of a shield, ,, 267 bad the host Call in what men soever were his friends, ,, 286 men may bicker with the things they love, ,, 325 that this m loves you no more. ,, 329
the m's love once gone never returns. ,, 333
He moving homeward babbled to his men, How Enid never loved a m but him, ,, 362
Seeing that ye are wedded to a m, ,, 425
But at the flash and motion of the m ,, 467
But if a m who stands upon the brink ,, 472 scared but at the motion of the m, ,, 476
'Horse and m,' he said, 'All of one mind ,, 483
But as a m to whom a dreadful loss Falls ,, 496 great charger stood, grieved like a m. ,, 535 Fearing to lose, and all for a dead m, ,, 564 cursing their lost time, and the dead m, ,, 576 men brought in whole hogs and quarter beeves, ,, 602
Good luck had your good m, ,, 617
'I will not eat Till yonder m upon the bier arise, ,, 657
Take warning: yonder m is surely dead; ,, 672
Until himself arise a living m, ,, 706 all the men and women in the hall Rose when they saw the dead m rise, ,, 731
I have used you worse than that dead m; ,, 735

Man (continued) Shriek'd to the stranger 'Slay not a dead m!' Geraint and E. 779 Were men and women staring and aghast, ,, 804 men may fear Fresh fire and ruin. ,, 822 with your own true eyes Beheld the m you loved ,, 847
when it weds with manhood, makes a m. ,, 868
The world will not believe a m repents: ,, 900
Full seldom doth a m repent, ,, 902 as now Men weed the white horse on the Berkshire hills ,, 936
sent a thousand men To till the wastes, ,, 941 call'd him the great Prince and m of men. ,, 961 M's word is God in man.' Balin and Balan 8
mightier men than all In Arthur's court; ,, 33
And lightly so return'd, and no m knew. ,, 42
My brother and my better, this m here, Balan. ,, 54
A m of thine to-day Abash'd us both, ,, 70 Reported of some demon in the woods Was once a m, ,, 125
as the m in life Was wounded by blind tongues ,, 129
This was the sunshine that hath given the m A growth, ,, 181
Whom all men rate the king of courtesy. ,, 257
Then spake the men of Pellam crying ,, 337
Truly, ye men of Arthur be but babes.' ,, 361
But thou art m, and canst abide a truth, ,, 501 Or devil or m Guard thou thine head.' ,, 552
crush'd the m Inward, and either fell, ,, 562
I fain would know what manner of men ,, 574 the most famous m of all those times, Merlin and V. 166 old m, Tho' doubtful, felt the flattery, ,, 183
The m so wrought on ever seem'd to lie ,, 208 none could find that m for evermore, ,, 211 ruin'd m Thro' woman the first hour; ,, 362 was to be, for love of God and men And noble deeds, ,, 412
Lo now, what hearts have men! ,, 442
'M dreams of Fame while woman wakes to love.' ,, 460 Fame with men, Being but ampler means ,, 488 for men sought to prove me vile, ,, 495 made her good m jealous with good cause. ,, 605
new lord, her own, the first of men. ,, 617
A little glassy-headed hairless m, ,, 620
sunders ghosts and shadow-casting men ,, 629
here was the m. And so by force they dragg'd him ,, 639
In such-wise, that no m could see her more, ,, 642 that old m Went back to his old wild, ,, 648
But you are m, you well can understand ,, 697 sweet Sir Sagramore, That ardent m? ,, 722 whose whole prey Is m's good name: ,, 729 stainless m beside a stainless maid; ,, 737
'A sober m is Percivale and pure; ,, 755
Arthur, blameless King and stainless m?' ,, 779
'M! is he m at all, who knows and winks? ,, 781
O selfless m and stainless gentleman, ,, 792 fain Have all men true and leal, all women pure; ,, 794
For men at most differ as Heaven and earth, ,, 814
O God, that I had loved a smaller m! ,, 872 Who loved to make men darker than they are, ,, 876 loyal worship is allow'd Of all men: Lancelot and E. 111
And swearing men to vows impossible, ,, 130 men go down before your spear at a touch, ,, 149
Then came an old, dumb, myriad-wrinkled m, ,, 170
Lancelot marvell'd at the worldless m; ,, 172
he seem'd the goodliest m That ever among ladies ,, 254
But kindly m moving among his kind: ,, 265
Suddenly speaking of the worldless m, ,, 271 his knights are better men than he— ,, 314 thro' all hindrance finds the m Behind it, ,, 333 more amazed Than if seven men had set upon him, ,, 351
I am not great: There is the m.' ,, 452 that a m far-off might well perceive, ,, 458
If any m that day were left afield, ,, 459
Strong men, and wrathful that a stranger knight ,, 468
The grace and versatility of the m! ,, 472 men went down before his spear at a touch, ,, 578 would he hide his name From all men, ,, 581
our Lancelot! that true m!' ,, 665

Man (continued) our true m change like a leaf at last? Lancelot and E. 686 since m's first fall, Did kindlier unto m, " 859 the sick m forgot her simple blush, " 864 love Of m and woman when they love their best, " 869 Another world for the sick m; " 874
no m there will dare to mock at me; " 1053
it is mine to love Him of all men " 1077 never yet Was noble m but made ignoble talk. " 1088 and bid call the ghostly m Hither, " 1099 when the ghostly m had come and gone, " 1101 therefore let our dumb old m alone Go with me, " 1127
Our bond, as not the bond of m and wife, " 1191
Our bond is not the bond of m and wife. " 1206 hard and still as is the face that men Shape to their fancy's eye " 1251 then turn'd the tongueless m From the half-face " 1261 a m Made to be loved; " 1363
now a lonely m Wifeless and heirless, " 1370
To make men worse by making my sin known? " 1417
Arthur's greatest knight, a m Not after Arthur's heart! " 1419 Not knowing he should die a holy m. " 1429
m Could touch or see it, he was heal'd at once, Holy Grail 54
A m wellnigh a hundred winters old, " 85 all men's hearts became Clean for a season, " 90 pale nun, I spake of this To all men; " 130 letters in a tongue no m could read. " 171
'No m could sit but he should lose himself:' " 174 staring each at other like dumb men Stood, " 193
And in the lowest beasts are slaying men, And in the second men are slaying beasts, And on the third are warriors, perfect men, And on the fourth are men with growing wings, " 234
'but men With strength and will to right the wrong'd, " 308 men and boys astride On wyvern, lion, " 349 Thou mightiest and thou purest among men!' " 426
but found at top No m, nor any voice. " 428
I saw That m had once dwelt there; " 430
I found Only one m of an exceeding age. " 431 rose a hill that none but m could climb, " 489 Part black, part whiten'd with the bones of men, " 500
Taking my war-horse from the holy m, " 537 Rejoice, small m, in this small world of mine, " 559 phantoms in your quest, No m, no woman?' " 563
'All men, to one so bound by such a vow, " 565
Then said the monk, 'Poor men, when yule is cold, " 613 and their wise men Were strong in that old magic " 665
A square-set m and honest; " 703 words Of so great men as Lancelot and our King " 713 Therefore I communed with a saintly m, " 742
if ever loyal m and true Could see it, " 756
There was I beaten down by little men, " 789 great beasts rose upright like a m, " 821 nun and thou have driven men mad, " 862
all of true and noble in knight and m " 882
For as the base m, judging of the good, Pelleas and E. 80
as he came away, The men who met him " 142
No men to strike? Fall on him all at once, " 268 she gazed upon the m Of princely bearing, " 305
this m loves, If love there be: " 307
Art thou not he whom men call light-of-love?' " 361
I to your dead m have given my troth, " 389
'Why then let men couple at once with wolves. " 536
M was it who marr'd heaven's image in thee thus?' Last Tournament 64 honey from hornet-combs, And men from beasts— " 358 as from men secure Amid their marshes, " 426 Men, women, on their sodden faces, " 474
'my m Hath left me or is dead;' " 494
I—misyoked with such a want of m— " 571
my Mark's, by whom all men Are noble, " 599
The greater m, the greater courtesy. " 633
The m of men, our King—My God, the power Was once in vows when men believed the King! " 648
'M, is he m at all?' methought, " 663

Man (continued) he seem'd to me no m, But Michaël trampling Satan; Last Tournament 672 heather-scented air, Pulsing full m; " 692 reverencing king's blood in a bad m, Guinevere 37
But, if a m were halt or hunch'd, " 41 such a feast As never m had dream'd; " 264 so glad were spirits and men Before the coming " 269 prophets were they all, Spirits and men: " 273
the King As wellnigh more than m, " 287 For there was no m knew from whence he came; " 289
a mystery From all men, like his birth; " 298
Were the most nobly-manner'd men of all; " 334
Reputed the best knight and goodliest m, " 382 True men who love me still, for whom I live, " 445 glorious company, the flower of men, " 464 Not only to keep down the base in m, " 480 love of truth, and all that makes a m. " 483
I hold that m the worst of public foes " 512
She like a new disease, unknown to men, " 518 Worst of the worst were that m he that reigns! " 523
no m dream but that I love thee still. " 560 strike against the m they call My sister's son— " 572 when the m was no more than a voice Pass. of Arthur 3 in His ways with men I find Him not. " 11 that these eyes of men are dense and dim, " 19 for the ghost is as the m; " 57 but no m was moving there; " 127 uttering this the King Made at the m: " 165 Until King Arthur's Table, m by m, " 172
They sleep—the men I loved. " 185
A little thing may harm a wounded m; " 210
Where lay the mighty bones of ancient men, Old knights, " 215
This is a shameful thing for men to lie. " 246 might have pleased the eyes of many men. " 259 some old m speak in the aftertime To all the people, " 275 for a m may fail in duty twice, " 297
I live three lives of mortal men, " 323 Among new men, strange faces, " 406 are men better than sheep or goats " 418 and loud leagues of m And welcome! To the Queen ii 9

And 'Ave Mary,' n and morn, Mariana in the S. 10
'Madonna, sad is n and morn,' " 22
'That won his praises n and morn?' " 34
And murmuring, as at n and morn, " 46
More inward than at n or morn, " 58
'The day to n,' she made her moan, 'The day to n, the n to morn, And day and n I am left alone " 81 Heaven over Heaven rose the n. " 92
'The n comes on that knows not morn, " 94
Look up thro' n: the world is wide. Two Voices 24
Would sweep the tracts of day and n. " 69
Some yearning toward the lamps of n; " 363
When April n's began to blow, Miller's D. 106
Flitted across into the n, " 127
I may seem, As in the n's of old, " 166
For hid in ringlets day and n, " 173
I scarce should be unclasp'd at n. " 186
Last n I wasted hateful hours Fatima 8
Last n, when some one spoke his name, " 15
I hear Dead sounds at n come from the inmost hills, Œnone 249
wheresoe'er I am by n and day, " 267
I rose up in the silent n: The Sisters 25
Echoing all n to that sonorous flow Palace of Art 27 young n divine Crown'd dying day with stars, " 183 that hears all n The plunging seas " 250
I sleep so sound all n, mother, May Queen 9 never see me more in the long gray fields at n; May Queen, N. Y's. E. 26

Night (continued) All n I lie awake, but I fall asleep at morn; May Queen, N. Y's. E. 50 came a sweeter token when the n and morning meet: „ Con. 22 Drops in a silent autumn n. Lotos-Eaters, C. S. 34
Sound all n long, in falling thro' the dell, D of F. Women 183
All n the splinter'd crags that wall the dell „ 187
'Saw God divide the n with flying flame, „ 225
Do hunt me, day and n.' „ 256
The n is starry and cold, my friend, D. of the O. Year 34
And dwells in heaven half the n. To J. S. 52 heard at dead of n to greet Troy's wandering prince, On a Mourner 32 the moving isles of winter shock By n, M. d'Arthur 141 like a wind, that shrills All n in a waste land, „ 202 voice Rise like a fountain for me n and day. „ 249
last n's gale had caught, And blown Gardener's D. 124
all that n I heard the watchman peal The sliding season: all that n I heard The heavy clocks knolling „ 182 and heir to all, Made this n thus. „ 190 N slid down one long stream of sighing wind, „ 267 ere the n we rose And saunter'd home Audley Court 79
a cry Should break his sleep by n, Walk. to the Mail 74
By n we dragg'd her to the college tower „ 89
I read, and fled by n, and flying turn'd: Edwin Morris 134 in the n, after a little sleep, I wake: St. S. Stylites 113 brought the n In which we sat together Love and Duty 59 and of sunrise mix'd In that brief n; the summer n, „ 73
Many a n from yonder ivied casement, Locksley Hall 7
Many a n I saw the Pleiads, „ 9 rosy red flushing in the northern n. „ 26
In the dead unhappy n, and when the rain „ 78 at n along the dusky highway near and nearer drawn, „ 113
Beyond the n, across the day, Day-Dm., Depart. 31
And perplex'd her, n and morn, L. of Burleigh 78
And burn the threshold of the n, The Voyage 18
New stars all n above the brim Of waters „ 25
Down the waste waters day and n, „ 58 overboard one stormy n He cast his body, „ 79 elfin prancer springs By n to eery warblings, Sir L. and Q. G. 34
And round again to happy n. Move eastward 12
I HAD a vision when the n was late: Vision of Sin 1
'Thou art mazed, the n is long, „ 195
And the longer n is near: „ 196
seem'd, as in a nightmare of the n, Enoch Arden 114
Many a sad kiss by day by n renew'd „ 161
After a n of feverous wakefulness, „ 231
Then fearing n and chill for Annie, „ 443
one n it chanced That Annie could not sleep, „ 489
compass'd round by the blind wall of n „ 492
Half the n, Buoy'd upon floating tackle „ 550 Hurt in that n of sudden ruin and wreck, „ 564 third n after this, While Enoch slumber'd „ 907 was Edith that same n; Aylmer's Field 279 Yet once by n again the lovers met, „ 413 rustling once at n about the place, „ 547
That n, that moment, when she named his name, „ 581
one n, except For greenish glimmerings „ 621 Returning, as the bird returns, at n, Sea Dreams 43
the sea roars Ruin: a fearful n!' „ 81 Left him one hand, and reaching thro' the n Her other, „ 287 your sleep for this one n be sound: „ 315
'Storm in the n! for thrice I heard the rain Lucretius 26
from some bay-window shake the n; Princess i 106
To float about a glimmering n, „ 247
The circled Iris of a n of tears; „ iii 27
My mother, 'tis her wont from n to n „ 32
And so last n she fell to canvass you: „ 40
Up in one n and due to sudden sun: „ iv 312
Robed in the long n of her deep hair, „ 491
the long fantastic n With all its doings „ 565 came As n to him that sitting on a hill „ 574 later in the n Had come on Psyche weeping: „ v 49
You did but come as goblins in the n, „ 220
heavy dews Gathered by n and peace, „ 244 Night (continued) A n of Summer from the heat, Princess vi 54 like n and evening mixt Their dark and gray, „ 131 whole n's long, up in the tower, „ 255
cloud Drag inward from the deeps, a wall of n, „ vii 37
Drew the great n into themselves, „ 49
Blanche had sworn That after that dark n among the fields „ 73
Deep in the n I woke: „ 173 shares with man His n's, his days, „ 263
the new day comes, the light Dearer for n, „ 347
And gradually the powers of the n, „ Con 111

third n brought a moon With promise of large light „ 393
Hot was the n and silent; „ 395
Here in the still sweet summer n, „ 473 bounded forth and vanish'd thro' the n. „ 487
by wild and way, for half the n, „ 497
Round whose sick head all n, like birds of prey, Last Tournament 138
And Lancelot's, at this n's solemnity „ 223 Heard in dead n along that table-shore, „ 463 that autumn n, like the live North, „ 479
The n was dark; the true star set. „ 605
One black, mute midsummer n I sat, „ 612
That n came Arthur home, „ 755
In the dead n, grim faces came and went Guinevere 70
And then they were agreed upon a n „ 96
Fled all n long by glimmering waste and weald, „ 128
This n, a rumour wildly blown about Came, „ 153 and dark the n and chill! „ 168 and dark and chill the n! „ 174 that n the bard Sang Arthur's glorious wars, „ 285 Thro' the thick n I hear the trumpet blow: „ 569 making all the n a steam of fire. „ 599 like wild birds that change Their season in the n Pass. of Arthur 39
As of some lonely city sack'd by n, „ 43 rose the King and moved his host by n, „ 79 moving isles of winter shock By n, „ 309
